

Kevin Sullivan Releases New Single 'No Saxophone'

FORMER forensic crime scene investigator turned singer-songwriter Kevin Sullivan returns with his new single, No Saxophone – a song full of heart, with one hell of an ending.

Inspired by a chance meeting with iconic INXS band member Kirk Pengilly, the song takes the bass and the brass for a walk, as Kevin brings sax to the country.

"I was lucky enough to meet Kirk - he's such an incredible multi-instrumentalist, but his sax solos always stood out for me. I remember thinking it's a shame there's no saxophone in a country band, and before I knew it, I'd written the whole song."

No Saxophone is the third single from Kevin's album Belonging, released in 2018. The song has become a crowd favourite with Kevin's fans, and is already one of his most requested tracks on radio. "People just love this song," explains Kevin, "Not only because it has a fantastic saxophone solo, but because it has a great vibe and it's also a lot of fun to play."

The track tells the story of the various musicians and their instruments vying for a position in a country band. It has a catchy, foot tapping country tempo, building up to the saxophone's triumphant rebellion.

"I hope this song encourages people to have a broader appreciation of country music, which is a growing, breathing, exciting genre of music," points out Kevin. "Of course there's a saxophone in a country band, and every other type of instrument, just as it should be."

Kevin Sullivan has already had a big year, travelling to Nashville, Tennessee, in April to record with award winning producer Matt Fell, then returning to support Lee Kernaghan, Travis Collins, the McClymonts and other artists at the inaugural Big Country Festival in Berry, NSW, in May. Most recently, Kevin hosted and performed with the legendary Bill Chambers at a house concert on the south coast of NSW.

Kevin will also be appearing at a number of festivals and venues around the country including the upcoming Mildura Country Music Festival and Murrumbidgee Country Music Festival, both in September 2019, and the KLC Gold Country Music Festival (Kiama Loves Country) and the Ballina Country Music Festival and will also be supporting Amber Lawrence on tour, all in the lead up to Tamworth 2020.

No Saxophone was released on June 7 around the country and launched at the KLC Gold Country Music Festival (Kiama Loves Country) on the June long weekend.

For more information contact Back Deck Music Pty Ltd: 0417048959

Email: backdeckmusic@outlook.com

www.kevinsullivanmusic.com

Facebook: @kevinsulliosullivan | Instagram: @kevinsulliosullivan

KEVIN SULLIVAN

Biography

From forensic police crime scene investigator to singer-songwriter, Kevin Sullivan has made the transition in style. Following his graduation at the 2018 , CMAA Senior Academy of Country Music Course, his album BELONGING debuted at No. 2 on iTunes. Kevin headlined at the iconic Birdsville Races and in 2018 played in the Emerging Artists Showcase at the Gympie Music Muster, at EKKA in Brisbane, Murrumbidgee, Mildura, Ballina and Kiama Country Music Festival.

This year a highlight so far, was in April 2019 Kevin travelled to Nashville with Award winning producer Matt Fell and recorded three new songs that will be singles on his next Album and whilst in Nashville playing on Music Row with American Country singer Kinsey Rose at the iconic Legends Corner bar.

Returning to Australia, May saw Kevin performing at the inaugural Big Country Festival in Berry NSW supporting Lee Kernaghan, The McClymonts, Travis Collins and then a house concert with the legendary Bill Chambers.

A natural storyteller and family man, Kevin played across the outback for over 18 years. He's played at many remote locations throughout Australia, from Karumba to Bourke and the Woomera Detention Centre.

Kevin's third single, No Saxophone released on June 7 originated after a chance meeting with legendary INXS band member, Kirk Pengilly who played saxophone and guitar for the Australian Super Group.

Kevin will be appearing at a number of festivals and venues including the Kiama Loves Country Festival over the June long weekend, the Mildura Country Music Festival, the Murrumbidgee Festival and in October, Kevin will also be supporting Amber Lawrence on her SPARK tour and then playing the Ballina Country Music Festival, all in the lead up to Tamworth 2020.